Dear student,

Welcome to St John's. We are very glad that you are joining our academic community. Like most Oxford Colleges, St John's is home to undergraduate and postgraduate students in a wide variety of subjects, as well as to academic and professional staff. All of us are here to enable the educational mission of the College, and we are pleased to welcome you to become part of that.

As Senior Tutor I have overall responsibility for teaching in the College. While as graduates your teaching and research is mostly a matter for your Faculties and Departments, the College also supports your learning. You have earned your place in College through a competitive process, and we are confident that you will thrive here. Postgraduate study for many of you will feel different to your previous studies, whichever institution you have joined us from, and we will help you to navigate that transition. The College puts in place plenty of support – the library, the welfare and wellbeing team, my colleagues in our Academic Office, and more – to help you find your feet, and of course there will be existing students in your subject area, and in the MCR, who can offer advice.

You will hear more from me (and others) about that in Welcome Week, and about how to make the best academic start to your time at St John's. There will be a lot of information given to you in that busy time; if I were to offer one piece of advice it would be: if in doubt – ask!

I look forward to meeting you.

Yours sincerely,
