

St John's College, Oxford

Study Week for Teachers and Education Professionals

Sunday 22 – Saturday 28 July 2018

Each year St John's College, Oxford, invites a group of teachers and education professionals to stay at the College and pursue a study project of their choice. There are no restrictions on the projects undertaken, so long as it contributes to your personal or professional development.

In brief

- Around 30 participants working in the state sector
- Single accommodation, breakfast and evening meals provided
- Valuable networking opportunity between teachers from different schools and subjects
- Opportunity to meet with University academics in your area of interest (where possible)
- Opportunity to meet members of the Admissions team
- Access to the College library and the Bodleian Library- the University's copyright library

Participants must make their own travel arrangements and arrange lunch on each day. Otherwise, this event is FREE of charge.

"I found the opportunity to use the resources in the Bodleian Library and St John's Library extremely valuable. It was good to have a chance to meet tutors linked to our areas of interest. The week was very well organised, with a good variety of optional activities and meetings, but also a great deal of independent study time to work on our chosen projects." 2015 participant
